I can do many things on my phone. I can use it to record videos, listen to music, and take pictures. Sometimes I even use it to surf the Internet. My grandpa told me that there were no phones when he was my age.

So I asked him how he used to do all the things that I do now.

When Grandpa was a kid, there were no videos. But when my parents were kids, he used to record videos of them on a video camera. As for music, Grandpa used to listen to records when he was a kid. He played cassette tapes when my parents were kids. He used to have CDs, too. In his younger days, Grandpa used to take pictures and develop his own photos. He used to send the photos in the mail to his friends. Today he uses his phone for all of these things.

Lesson 5

Writing

A.

My dad loves technology. Every Saturday, we go to an electronics store. We usually stay for several hours. My dad looks at all of the new gadgets. Last Saturday, we bought a new laptop. It's the most advanced computer in our house. It's also the most colorful. It comes with a keyboard and mouse in the brightest blue I've ever seen.

Next week, we're going to buy some accessories. I'll get a webcam. My dad is looking on the Internet to compare webcams. The most expensive model is the thinnest and lightest. I prefer a small webcam. The tiniest model is the least expensive. I hope to find one that goes with my computer, keyboard, and printer.
