Preparing Child Ambassadors

To represent your country, you need not only good English communication skills but also a number of other qualities such as strong values, in depth knowledge of other countries and cultures and superior speech skills. If you want your students to be shining little diplomats for Taiwan, then this is a must see presentation for you as you will be shown effective and practical ways of not just language development but also how to teach them values, culture and speech skills at the same time. Examples will be taken from Macmillan Education's bestseller Next Stop which incorporates all of these features.
