Robin and Dan were neighbors. One day they decided to go skating. "My mom's going downtown by car. She can give us a ride," said Dan. "Let's walk. I have to return this library book on the way," said Robin. "It's too far to walk," said Dan. "No, it isn't," said Robin, and he started walking down the street. "You'll be too tired to skate when you get there! It's quicker by car!" shouted Dan. It was three o'clock. Robin turned right at the grocery store, and then left at the news stand. Then he turned right at the school and went into the library. It was a quarter after three. "Dan's at the skating rink now," he thought. But Dan was sitting in a traffic jam outside the supermarket on Kennedy Boulevard. When Robin left the library, he turned right and walked to the drugstore, then turned left. When he arrived at the skating rink, he looked at his watch. It was three-thirty. But Dan wasn't there. He was sitting in a traffic jam outside the Science Museum. When he arrived at the skating rink at four o'clock, he was tired, hot and angry! "You see," said Robin. "It's better to walk and it's faster!"

Robin Hood's Dinner Party

1 Listen and read the story.

The sun was shining. Robin Hood was going to Nottingham Fair. It was the day of the Sheriff's famous archery competition and Robin Hood was one of the best archers in the country. The prize was a bag of gold. Robin was poor and he wanted to win that prize!

It was a long way to Nottingham and Robin had to walk through Sherwood Forest. On his way he met some foresters. "Where are you going?" they asked him. "I'm going to Nottingham Fair," he said. "I want to win the Sheriff's bag of gold." The foresters laughed. "You can't shoot with a bow and arrow!" they said. "Oh yes, I can!" he said. "I'll show you!"

He took his bow and put an arrow into it. "What are you going to shoot at?" laughed one of the men. "You decide!" said Robin Hood. The foresters whispered together. Then they pointed at a deer. "Shoot that deer!" they said. Robin was surprised. "I can't shoot a deer!" he said. "The deer in Sherwood Forest are the King's property. The Sheriff will kill me!" said Robin. "He won't kill you," said one of the foresters, "because you won't kill the deer!"

Robin shot the arrow at the deer. He hit it in the heart, and the deer fell down dead. "Now look what you've done!" shouted the foresters. "You've killed one of the King's deer. We're going to arrest you, and the Sheriff will kill you!"

But Robin Hood could run very fast! He ran into the middle of Sherwood Forest and hid. "Now I've ruined my life," he thought. "I can't go home now. I'll have to live in Sherwood Forest for the rest of my life!"

2 Answer the questions in your notebook.

- Where was Robin going and why?
- Whose deer did he shoot?
- Why did he have to hide in Sherwood Forest?
