II. Cloze Test

Questions 6 - 10

In 1976, Anita Roddick opened a small cosmetics store called The Body Shop. She later wrote on her website that it wasn't just economic _____ (6) _____ that inspired her to open the store. She was also influenced by the cultures she had experienced in her travels, especially women's "body _____ (7) _____" that used natural ingredients. And she remembered the hatred of waste that her mother had taught her as a child. "Why waste a _____ (8) _____ when you can refill it?"

Roddick was _____ (9) _____ about the types of products her stores carried. Most cosmetics sold at that time were tested on animals, and some animals were killed to produce beauty products. Roddick said she refused to sell products that harmed animals or ones that damaged the natural environment. She recycled all her bottles, used recycled items in the store, and promoted the idea of fair trade with developing countries. Roddick believed that consumers should support businesses that are run ethically. This _____ (10) _____ was called "ethical consumerism" and was an early form of the modern green movement.
