Questions 6 - 10

Family law and employment law are two important areas for Men's Rights Activists, or MRAs. Many men feel that _____(6)_____ leave laws are unfair. Generally, women are given paid time off work to care for a newborn child, but men do not receive the same treatment. In France, a woman may take up to sixteen weeks' paid maternity leave, while a man gets fifteen days' paternity leave. In other countries, paternity leave is unpaid or _____(7)_____. Further, some recent laws specify that a _____(8)_____ percentage of women have to be in high positions within companies. MRAs criticize these laws because there are no minimum requirements for men. Family law is also a problem. When parents separate, the mother tends to be given _____(9)_____ rather than the father. The MRAs say this shows a bias against men. For these reasons, these activists are fighting for _____(10)_____ for men.
