For many years, people have tried to reduce waste through recycling. However, the world still produces about two billion tons of waste each year. The Zero-Waste Movement is a campaign against waste. People in the movement try to create zero waste in their life. For most people, it is a completely new lifestyle. A zero-waste lifestyle prevents waste before it happens. Recycling is not even necessary.

To follow a zero-waste lifestyle, “zero-wasters” mainly do two things. One, they use less. And two, they reuse more. How do they do these two things?
